Lauzière - BONNEVAL-TARENNAISE

Boucle des Pissus - Massif de la Lauzière (CCVA)

Loop through the Lauzière massif which gives this place all its mineral dimension.

Les cimes dentelées de la Pointe de Combe Bronsin et de la Pointe des Arangles toisent de leur hauteur le randonneur. Elles donnent à cet endroit du massif toute sa dimension minérale. A la belle saison, le sentier en balcon file parmi les myrtilliers et les rhododendrons. Parsemé de lacs d'altitude et de zones humides, ce coin sauvage de la Lauzière abrite une faune abondante, et offre notamment un habitat de choix aux tritons alpestres.

Altimetric profile

Min elevation 1581 m Max elevation 1979 m

The landscape is grandiose, the Massif gives this place all its mineral dimension, it overhangs you from its most beautiful summits such as the Pointe des Marmottes noires 2339 m and Combe Bronsin 2499 m.

After taking the path at the start of the Gelon bridge which leads to the summits, continue to the right towards the Pissus refuge. Go up the valley of the Villard stream. Once at the 1965m point, follow the contour line to the left until you reach the 1970m mark. Continue in the direction of the Chalet de la Cave du Villard.

From the Chalet, go up the mountain pasture to the Lac du Loup while respecting the possible presence of the Tarines cows so as not to turn their milk which could turn into Beaufort faster than expected! This wetland is home to the Alpestre newt and feeds the Haut Gentil stream. It is characteristic of our siliceous mountains of the Northern Alps.

Return to the Chalet and continue to the right. Follow the Haut Gentil stream before turning left and joining the Gelon bridge by a gentle descent.
